

April 6, 2004 Exhibition Match

An exhibition meeting was held in Winslow Arizona, guest hosted by Annie "Friggin" Oakley and Bat "Friggin" Masterson. Their attitude and attire more than met the high standards of The 361 Club.

Annie & Bat

Sasha has applied for the official "West of the Mississippi" mascot position. The protruding tongue indicates participation in the actual tasting.

The contenders were perennial favorite Moët & Chandon Brut Imperial and the Elegant Tattinger Brut.

Boon "Friggin" Doggie poured and, consequently was not eligible to vote:

Annie: Moët & Chandon

Hia: Moët & Chandon

Bat: Tattinger

In a split decision Moët takes the win. However, all tasters agreed it was a close call.

These pictures show the civilized setting for the "Old West" tasting and its aftermath. Dessert consisting of many bottles of Cabernet and several pounds of chocolate candy took its toll on the arena. The participants looked even worse.

Note: Bat, using a combination of analysis, investigatorial skills, perverted mindset, and hard fall from his skateboard was able to figure out the true meaning of "The 361 Club". That's not really an accomplishment to be proud of.
