

April 9, 2009

A return to normalcy - as close as we get

Finally, a traditional Champagne has upset the pretender - the Cave De L'Aurance Cremant. It is only fitting that the ever popular Nicolas Feuillatte (fellatio to those in the know) restored order to universe. It was a clear victory with only one vote going to the reigning champion. It will be interesting to see if other unexpected challengers will emerge.

The contenders

It's not about the food, or is it?

The warmup course

Judging from the array of appetizers served by Hia prior to the tasting club members seem to have little concern about a clean palate for the tasting. Perhaps that explains the success of the non-traditional challengers.

Old business

Fighting back

Apparently Hia has decided to fend off Kit's monthly attacks.

The Tasting Arena

Before

...and after

No business, he's just old

April 9, 2009

Bizarre behavior

A seemingly innocent frozen bunny dessert surrounded by an honor guard of marshmallow peeps was served. Unfortunately, the club members went crazy.

A painful medical procedure?

Pancho drowning the honor guard

A "non-sleeping" lion on a plate

The innocent victim

The Easter Bunny meets fellatio

C. F. Kate and P. F. Villa can't seem to contain their amusement at the plight of the poor animals, dessert and otherwise.

They think it's funny

Random shots

Hia and Kit - friends again

Cattle and Pancho planning something terrible

Difficult to explain