

April 11, 2006

In a further demonstration of the importance of technology to the 361 Club, Poncho and Kit, from Key West, teleconferenced to attend the meeting held in Denver.

Calamity and Hia - West Good!

Local transportation varied greatly among club members - Denver above and Key West below.

The lasting arena, including a photo of Calamity's grandson - great early exposure to the finer things.

In a suprising turn of events the champion, Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin, (the Widow) was defeated by challenger Nicolas Feuillatte (Fellatio). The three regular members (Hia, Calamity and Boon) voted against the Widow while the Arizona contingent Annie and Bat voted for the perennial favorite. There was, however, some question about the effect of altitude on the Widow's normally fine aroma. So, Fellatio will reign at the next meeting.

Two new participants, seated at opposite ends of the table (Pat -left; Don -right). They must be related because they share a common last name ("Friggin-Guest").

Kit and Poncho, although not able to sample the Champagne, were guzzling suitable beverages.

For dessert Annie "Friggin" Oakley made a contribution to 361 Club culture - the introduction of Peep-kabob - not just an Easter treat.