

June 15, 2007
Page 1

Poncho, the host for the meeting preparing the arena for the tasting. This marked the first meeting since the last Sopano's show but to keep the spirit alive Poncho wore a shirt from Tony Soprano Fashions.

The place cards were also based on the Soprano's theme.

Poncho presented Korbel, a California vintage, as the challenger. Although Korbel was a fine tasting selection it was defeated unanimously by the more traditional Andre Clouet ("Andy Clout").

Prior to the tasting Hia was apparently shocked by something mentioned in the conversation between Kit and Calamity.

The arena, prior to the start of festivities.

As part of the seemingly endless parade of products conceived by Poncho - 361 Club Postage. If only the membership could figure out how to sell this stuff.

Although 361 Club meetings are "not about the food" the pizza was both attractive and tasty.

Once again Poncho served what is rapidly becoming a tradition at meeting he hosts - the frozen chocolate delicacy known as "Dessert Shrapnel".

In addition to the contenders the thirsty club members enjoyed a bottle of Perrier Jouet, a club favorite. Also a delicious Cabernet Chocolate sauce enhanced the already delicious dessert.