

March 20, 2007
Page 1

Two contenders (not a reigning champion) were presented. Garnering all the votes, Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin ("The Widow") easily defeated Nicolas Feuillatte ("Fellatio"). Some members commented on the offensive aftertaste of the loser.

Once again, Poncho "Friggin" Villa has delivered on a great product concept. This time it is the beautiful, and exclusive, 361 Club Champagne flute introduced at this meeting. The picture speaks for itself.

Using a combination of modern technology and old world craftsmanship the hostess, Calamity "Friggin" Jane amazed the members (easily done) with her coffee based creations.

An important warning for future guests:

The new Champagne flutes are meant to be used only by members. Guests who accidentally drink from the forbidden flutes will be immediately fined $10,000. They will, however, receive a membership for their trouble.

March 20, 2007
Page 2

The pressure of keeping the secret of the new Champagne flutes was almost too much for Poncho. Had the meeting been delayed any longer his head probably would have exploded.

Although the club is about Champagne, not food, the combination of ice cream, cookies and pizza is hard to beat.

...and of course the brew from the incredible coffee machine. Note the Piper-Heidsieck backup Champagne in the background.

The arena - simple, yet elegant.