

The November 21st tasting introduced a new wrinkle, a Rose Champagne from Nicolas Feuillatte. The club members seemed delighted to savor a new and different variety of the old standby nicknamed "fellatio".

November 21, 2006

Calamity "Friggin" Jane was apparently looking for divine guidance before she cast her vote for the defending champion, V. Sattui.

It was decided that the "friggin" guests would be allowed to vote resulting in an intense competition. Also, a 361 club first, controversy over one of the votes. Because of this each voter (Boon, the host, was merely a spectator) is highlighted - with appropriate comments.

Hia "Friggin" Watha in a disgraceful turn of events had her vote for Nicolas Feuillatte disqualified because of a hanging chad - a club first.

Kit "Friggin" Carson was obviously considering breaking the club rule against spitting before voting for the Nicolas Feuillatte Rose.

The contenders

Sid "Friggin" Guest seemed to be wondering what the hell he was doing there before casting his vote for Nicolas Feuillatte.

Poncho "Friggin" Villa, despite falling asleep, cast his vote for the reigning champion from V. Sattui.

Although arriving late with some bizarre excuse about being gainfully employed, Kevin "Friggin" Guest distastefully cast the deciding vote in favor of the winner - Nicolas Feuillatte. His deciding vote stopped the controversial decision from going to the Supreme Court.

As usual dessert was an important part of the proceedings.

Credibility?
